Example

This Example is intended to help you compare the cost of investing in the Fund with the cost of investing in other mutual funds.

The example assumes that you invest $10,000 in the Fund for the time periods indicated and then redeem all of your shares at the end of those periods. The example also assumes that your investment has a 5% return each year, and that the Fund's operating expenses remain the same. Although your actual costs may be higher or lower, based on these assumptions your costs would be:

	1 Year	3 Years	5 Years	10 Years
Investor Class	$184	$569	$980	$2,127
Institutional Class	$1334	$415	$718	$1,579

Portfolio Turnover

The Fund pays transaction costs, such as commissions, when it buys and sells securities (or “turns over” its portfolio). A higher portfolio turnover rate may indicate higher transaction costs and may result in higher taxes when Fund shares are held in a taxable account. These costs, which are not reflected in annual fund operating expenses or in the example, affect the Fund’s performance. During the most recent fiscal year, the Fund’s portfolio turnover rate was 69% of the average value of its portfolio.

Principal Investment Strategies

The Fund seeks to achieve its objective by investing substantially all its assets in securities listed on a national securities exchange.

To meet its investment objective, the Fund will employ an investment strategy that emphasizes long-term capital appreciation and safety of principal. Under normal circumstances, the Fund invests more than 90% of its total assets in common stocks of companies identified by the Fund’s investment sub-adviser, G.W. Henssler & Associates, LTD (the “Sub-adviser”), based on the characteristics below. the Fund may invest in companies of any size, and the Fund typically holds its common stock investments until the fundamentals of the issuer change or other opportunities present themselves. In addition, the Fund may invest up to 20% of its total assets in common stocks of foreign issuers that are traded in the United States and in American Depository Receipts of foreign companies. When selecting common stocks for the Fund, the Sub-adviser seeks companies that exhibit the following characteristics:

- undervalued assets;
- strong balance sheet characteristics and financial foundations;
- high earnings expectations; and
- quality management and potential for future growth.

Factors deemed important by the Sub-adviser in selecting securities of such companies include, but are not limited to:

- price;
- price history; and
- price-to-earnings ratio.

The Fund believes that its focus on the fundamentals of the businesses it invests in results in the purchase of above-average, high-quality securities with strong growth potential.

Principal Investment Risks

Investors in the Fund may lose money. An investment in the Fund is not a deposit of the bank and is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. The success of the Fund cannot be guaranteed. There are risks associated with investments in the types of securities in which the Fund invests. These risks include:

Market Risk. The value of stocks selected for the Fund's portfolio, or the overall stock market may decline over short or extended periods.

Business and Economic Risk. Often, a particular industry, or certain companies within that industry, may be affected by circumstances that have little to no impact on other industries, or other companies within that industry.

Management Style Risk. The ability of the Fund to meet its investment objective is directly related to the Adviser's selection of investments for the Fund, particularly in volatile stock markets.

Value Style Investing Risk. A value stock may not increase in price as anticipated by the Adviser if other investors fail to recognize the company's value and bid up the price, the markets favor faster-growing companies, or the factors that the Adviser believes will increase the price of the security do not occur. Companies that may be considered out of favor, particularly companies emerging from bankruptcy, may tend to lose value more quickly in periods of anticipated economic downturns, may have difficulty retaining customers and suppliers and, during economic downturns, may have difficulty paying their debt obligations or finding additional financing.

Political Risk. The regulation or deregulation of particular industries may materially impact the value of companies within the affected industry.

Investments in Small- and Mid-Sized Companies Risk. Although the Fund invests in companies of all sizes, there may be times when the Fund is substantially invested in small- and mid-sized companies. Stocks of smaller and mid-sized companies may have more risks than larger companies. In general, they have less experienced management teams, serve smaller markets, and find it more difficult to obtain financing for growth or potential development than larger companies. Due to these and other factors, small- and mid-sized companies may be more susceptible to market downturns, and their stock prices may be more volatile.

Foreign Securities Risk. Investing in foreign securities involves risks that political and economic events unique to a foreign country or region will affect those markets and their issuers. These events will not necessarily affect the U.S. economy or similar issuers located in the United States. In addition, investments in foreign countries are generally denominated in a foreign currency. As a result, changes in the value of those currencies compared to the U.S. dollar may affect (positively or negatively) the value of the Fund's investments. These currency movements may happen separately from and in response to events that do not otherwise affect the value of the security in the issuer's home country.

Shareholder Concentration Risk. When a small number of shareholders account for a disproportionate share of the Fund's assets, the Fund could be vulnerable to a very large redemption request from a significant shareholder who wants to redeem. Such redemption may increase the expense ratio of the Fund. The decision-making process may also be controlled by a limited number of shareholders which may be biased in favor of said small group.

Performance

The bar chart and performance table that follow provide some indication of the risks and variability of investing in the Fund by showing changes in the Fund's performance from year to year and by showing how the Fund's average annual total returns compare with those of a broad measure of market performance.
